40 Officers Among Injured as They Attempt to Quell Wave of Disorders.

MAYOR MAKES APPEAL

Hospitals Filled With Injured; Wounding of Colored Soldier Starts It.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Six Negroes were dead and 155 persons, mostly Negroes, and 40 policemen were injured today after a night of disorders between bands of Negroes and police in New York's Harlem.

Police said 363 persons had been arrested and more were being picked up as additional policemen reported for duty.

Mayor La Guardia went on the air for the second time early this morning appealing to "decent, law-abiding citizens of Harlem" to help curb the wave of disorders.

"This was not a race riot," the mayor declared, "there was no conflict between groups of our citizens, what happened was the thoughtless, criminal acts of hoodlums, reckless, irresponsible people."

"Shame has come to our city and sorrow to a great number of decent, law-abiding citizens residing in the Harlem district I saw the recklessness of this mob in action. Strange to say, there was no concerted action. Groups of hoodlums acted on their own initiative."

He added that most of the citizens injured were hurt "by their own neighbors, by missiles thrown from rooftops."

The mayor said "a large number of extra policemen have been assigned, and the reserves have been called out. All traffic is being detoured, and all liquor stores will be closed until further notice.

"There may be difficulty in getting normal sale of food today, but we will get busy at once on that.

10 Arrested In Raid on 'Call House'

Business, Professional Men Among Patrons, Police Claim.

Ten persons, including the operator and two residents of a "call house" of prostitution at 110 West Fourth street were taken into custody early Sunday in a police raid on the house which officers said had been frequented by Mansfield business and professional men.

The raiding party, headed by Police Chief Meade K. Bates, entered the house shortly after midnight Saturday, arresting eight of the 10 persons in the house and confiscating "address books" listing the names of men who visited the establishment and women who were called in for "special parties," Chief Bates said.

Mrs. Blanche Williams, confessed operator of the house, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 90 days in the county jail this morning in municipal court while two young women residents were fined $50 and costs each.

Five men and boys who were in the house when police raided it were cited for visiting a house of ill fame, but only one of them, Roy Thompson of Galion, showed up for the hearing today. He pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Others who forfeited $31.30 bond each by failing to appear were Floyd Bookwalter, Louise avenue; Lewis Weatherbie and Richard Enzor, both of Greenwich, and Wayne Horre, Mansfield.

A 17-year-old Fremont, O., youth, who said two of the older men took him to the house Saturday night, was held only as a witness. Because of his presence in the house, Mrs. Williams will be cited in probate court this afternoon on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, Bates said. Two of those taken into custody by police were 18 and 19 years old.

Pleading guilty to charges of residing in the house were Virginia Rebecca Harmon and Ollie Virginia Plauger. Both were fined $50 and costs.

The police chief said the two books confiscated in the raid represented a "cross-section of Mans-

Italian Mainland---Next For Invasion?

This map of Italy will help you follow the war news when the Allied invasion of the Italian mainland begins. Italy has an area of 119,800 square miles and a population (1941) of 45,354,000. The Maritime Alps separate Italy from France, the Swiss Alps in the north from Switzerland and the Dolomite Alps from Germany (Austria) and the Carnac and Julian Alps on the east from Yugoslavia. The length of the peninsula is 760 miles, while its breadth nowhere exceeds 150 miles. Italy is slightly larger than New England and New York but has more than twice their population. Rome, the capital, has a population of 1,348,700 (latest census figures). Milan is second largest with a population of 1,219,240. Then Naples, with 925,325; Turin with 698,000, and Genoa with 659,665.

Spectators See Wing of Ship Collapse as It Soars Over St. Louis Airport.

Prominent Aviation Figures Die as Motorless Plane Falls 2,000 Feet.

(By United Press)

ST. LOUIS—Army investigators sought to determine today what caused the wings of a huge new cargo glider to collapse, sending the craft earthward in a dive that killed 10 persons, including the mayor of St. Louis and others prominent in the aircraft industry.

The new type glider, making its second flight, crashed before 10,000 horrified spectators at Lambert-St. Louis municipal airport yesterday during a public demonstration. The craft was similar to the one which recently was towed across the Atlantic to England in the first such flight.

Lt. Col. G. R. Johnston, army air forces press relations officer, said that "every possible cause, including sabotage," would be investigated. The Federal Bureau of Investigation, he said, had not been called upon, but he indicated that it would be asked to investigate if the circumstances warranted it.

The 10 victims included Mayor William Dee Becker; Thomas Dysart, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce; and Maj. William B. Robertson, president of the Robertson Aircraft Corp., which built the glider.

Robertson, a pioneer in aviation, was co-founder of Lambert Field and helped finance Charles A. Lindbergh's historic flight to France. He helped organize Transcontinental Air Lines, assisted in surveying and laying out the China National Airways and made an aerial survey of the air transport facilities of Turkey.

The glider was flying directly over the field an an altitude of about 2,000 feet when spectators saw the right wing collapse. The wing dropped off a second after the glider was released from the Montgomery's Eighth Army Begins Big Smash Toward Catania; Berlin Civilians Ordered To Leave As Nazis Fear Air Blows.

BULLETIN

(By Associated Press)

A land invasion of Italy is coming soon, the Algiers radio warned tonight, as American and British troops launched a combined offensive to clear Sicily and Allied air forces reopened violent attacks on the peninsula's cities.

(By Associated Press)

Allied forces "have started an offensive" in Sicily, with U. S. troops seizing San Stefano to crumple the north flank of the Axis and the British Eighth army reported making a big push against Catania.

An official statement declared the offesnive had begun, and British, American and Canadian armies obviously were making an all-out drive to fold up the Messina bridgehead.

American doughboys captured "Bloody Ridge" and then moved on to take San Stefano in a drive that may presage a breakthrough along the north coast.

American troops also captured Mistretta, six miles from the northern coast of Sicily, taking 10,000 prisoners as they seized the city.

Simultaneous with the unleashing of powerful blows in the Sicilian-Italian theater, it was announced that Flying Fortresses, smashing at Naples with 500-pound bombs, had reopened the violent air offensive against the Italian mainland, fulfilling Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's threat to bomb the kingdom out of the war.

Hopes that the temporizing regime of Marshal Pietro Badoglio would make peace subsided as Madrid dispatches reported the Germans had taken advantage of the Italian government's hesitation and moved 18 divisions—180,000 to 270,000 men—into the area of the river Po.

Dispatches from Switzerland, too, said German troops—main obstacle to peace in Italy—were determined to stay.

The Naples railway station was "almost completely destroyed," the gas works blown up, two transports hit, and a big oil dump exploded and many buildings and planes wrecked at nearby Capodichino airdrome in the Flying Fortress assault.

The capture of San Stefano placed the Americans within about 65 miles of Messina Strait.

The Eighth army was said to have gained important positions in its first push toward Catania.

Masses of Allied aircraft appeared today to be bringing down

RAID ON PLOESTI PROVES COSTLY

20 U. S. Planes Shot Down Over Target, 'Several Others' Fail To Reach Base.

(By United Press)

CAIRO—Twenty out of nearly 200 American Liberators that turned Rumania's vast Ploesti oil fields into a flaming ruin yesterday were shot down over the target area and an additional unspecified number have failed to return from the record 2,400-mile flight, a communique announced today.

Despite the loss of at least 10 per cent of the huge force, the raid was counted a success with many direct hits being reported from heights of 100 to 500 feet on distillation plants, fractionary towers, boiler houses and storage tanks, which provide oil for one-third to one-half of the German war machine.

At least 51 intercepting German fighters, including Focke-Wulf 190s and and Messerschmitt 109s and 110s, were shot down by the unescorted Liberators, according to the communique, and other reports indicated that the bag might reach 53.

At least two of the 13 oil refineries in the Ploesti area were wrecked and the entire district, 35 miles north of Bucharest, was left wreathed in flames and smoke. Col. Leon Johnson, who Mansfield and County To Have Surprise Alert This Week.

The second surprise daylight air raid alert in the Mansfield area is scheduled for this week to test the northcentral Ohio civilian defense units mobilization strength and the area's alarm system.

All of Richland county and most of the surrounding counties will be included in the test which may occur today or anytime before next Sunday, state OCD headquarters said.

Persons on the streets, either walking or driving, will be required to take cover when the second blast of the air raid sirens is sounded. Mansfielders who may be in their homes or offices or seated on their porches will not be required to go to shelters.

Originally scheduled for last week, the state OCD announced the alert will be held this week.

Wanna Buy Hotel? World's Biggest On Auction Block

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The largest hotel in the world goes on the auction block next month.

The war department announced last night that the $25,000,000 Stevens hotel in Chicago, bought by the army a year ago for a mere $5,000,000, will be offered for sale on Sept. 4.

If you're interested, bring with you $125,000, better known as "earnest money," just to show that you're not kidding when you put in a bid.

The Stevens, built in 1927 at an estimated cost of $25,000,000, is 22 stories high, and contains 3,000 rooms.

The army took over last year, but the war department said regular army facilities built in the meantime end the need for military occupancy of the building.

London Observers See Past Week As War's Turning Point

(By United Press)

LONDON—The general opinion in London today is that three events of the past seven days marked the turning point of the war.

There is substantial variance of opinion both in British and American quarters as to how long it will be before Germany is defeated.

The three events are the Italian crack-up, the record-breaking Allied air offensive and detailed, corroborative reports from air combat crews revealing that the luftwaffe strength in western Europe is beginning to wane.

The biggest question in the situation is how rapidly the Allies can cash in on their unique opportunity for putting Germany under maximum military pressure. Three major actions are in progress — Allied operations against Italy, Russian operations wearing down the Germans on the eastern front and the western European air offensive.

Many experts—sometimes accused of over-enthusiasm—regard the present Anglo-American air

LIN SEN DIES

Chiang Kai Shek Named Acting President of China.

CHUNGKING — (AP) — Lin Sen, 81-year-old American educated president of the Chinese republic, died last night after a long illness. Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek was designated by the Koumintang central committee, the nation's highest executive body, as acting president.

Lin Sen became president of China in 1932 when he succeeded Chiang Kai Shek who resigned at that time to devote all of his time to preparing the army for the war with Japan.

He was born in Foochow, Fukien, in 1862 and went to California where he received his early education, remaining in the United States for many years. He returned to China shortly after the revolution in 1911.

Despite the relative political unimportance of the presidency, his age, his dignity and his interest in China and its problems, particularly those of the youth of China, had made him a great national figure.

Crestline Picks Up Gas Cut Rumor, Rushes Stations

"Don't spread rumors."

That's been the advice of the government for a good many months now, but apparently residents of Crestline forgot all about it last night.

A rumor that the value of gasoline "A" coupons would be reduced from four to two gallons at midnight started hundreds of Crestline motorists hurrying to filling stations to beat the "deadline" last night. And only one station in town was open.

That station is operated by W. B. Watros who said cars were lined up four blocks from the station.

Watros said he told the motorists that he didn't know of any impending reduction, but the motor-

Remove $50,000 Radio Cargo After Truck Upsets, Burns

Alertness on the part of state highway patrolmen from the Mansfield sub-station and volunteer motorists saved a $50,000 order of government radio equipment from being destroyed by fire yesterday

A truck in which the equipment was being transported struck a damaged spot on county road 150, one mile north of U. S. route 30-S, turned over and caught fire. Earl Stewart, of Wakerton, Ind., the driver, escaped injury.

Patrolmen and volunteer workers at first hesitated to unload the cargo, fearing that the truck might contain explosives. However, after reading the driver's bill of lading, they discovered no explosives listed and they managed to get the equipment from the burning truck. The cargo mainly consisted of radio transmitters.

The blaze was later extinguished by the Mansfield fire department. Damage to the truck owned by Mid-State Freight company, Chicago, Ill., was estimated at $1,000.

The radio equipment was taken to the Mansfield Transfer and Storage company. Officials of

Invasion Of Kiska On? Navy Continues To Remain Silent

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON The navy today maintained a "no comment" silence on the Vichy report that American troops landed on Kiska island, raising the possibility that the enemy radio station had been knocked out and that the Japs were "fishing" for information.

A similar situation existed on Attu when the Japs lost contact with their garrison after the American bombardment and landings and put out feeler reports to draw out news on progress of the invasion.

While the invasion of Kiska has been expected for several weeks, best opinion in official quarters was that the Vichy report was pure propaganda at this time but it did not mean U. S. forces would not land on the island at any time.

Kiska was subjected to eight naval bombardments and 61 air attacks during July and lack of opposition left little doubt that damage to shore defenses and installations was heavy.

The last reported naval bombardment was July 30, when light surface units pounded the vital Gertrude cove area and the main camp sector around Kiska harbor. Radio equipment would be particularly vulnerable to such an assault.

Prior to the landings on Attu island last May, U. S. scout patrols set foot on that Aleutian island and possibly the same tactics may have been used on Kiska.

AMERICANS AND BRITISH START SICILY DRIVE

the European roof on the Axis' head.

Catching a contagion of near panic, Berliners not essential to the war effort were reported to have been ordered to leave the German capital.

Nazi officials were reported in Stockholm dispatches to be convinced that Allied air fleets were about finished with knocking down Hamburg and were ready to go on to the next target—perhaps Berlin.

In a ferment of terror, 3,000,000 Italians were reported in Swiss dispatches to have fled their city homes to seek refuge in the country following the solemn warnings, repeated many times over Allied radios, that resumption of a violent air offensive had been ordered.

From Cairo's Middle East command about 175 four - engined American Liberators yesterday carried out what was reported to have been one of the most decisive raids of the war—a destructive attack on Rumania's oil center of Ploesti which supplies a great percentage of Germany's aviation gasoline.

As the big bombers returned, blackened with soot from the greatest mass low level air attack in history, crewmen reported the definite loss of 20 of their number. But they had shot down at least 51 of the enemy's fighters and were convinced the blow would "materially affect the course of the war."

These other developments highlighted the war news:

ITALY—Allied warships, battered the Italian mainland, General Eisenhower's headquarters announced. Shells screamed into the harbor of Vibo Valentia Marina just above the Italian toe, a railway bridge across the River Oliva 22 miles farther north and the harbor of Crotone on the gulf of Taranto Saturday night and early Sunday.

SICILY—American troops have taken "bloody Ridge," a boulder-studded and ravine-scared fortress, and thereby won a victory which their officers compared with that at Hill 609 in Tunisia when the way was opened for the breakthrough to Mateur. The ridge which barred the way to San Stefano on the north coast, was captured five days ago after the Americans had twice been thrown off it, said a delayed front line dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Harold V. Boyle.

American naval forces also bombarded the north Sicilian coast, blasting a way for the American Seventh army which had captured nine more towns, one of them within two miles of San Stefano, northern anchor of the Germans' Mt. Etna line. The Americans appeared to have planted a serious threat to the German flank.

CRETE AND GREECE — The explosive Italian situation threatened serious trouble between Germans and Italians. British headquarters announced it had definite information that Italian troops in Crete resisted German efforts to disarm them and were still standing firm although they had been fired upon. An Istanbul dispatch from Turkey said the Germans and Italians were at bayonet point also on the Greek mainland.

A message to Crete patriots, broadcast 30 times from London and Cairo, warned them against taking part in the clash.

"Do not make a general rising until we land. Await a signal. You will get full instructions," the message said.

RUSSIA—The Red army, slugging its way over sodden fields and littered battlegrounds, had gained from five to 7½ miles and captured 100 more villages in its latest thrusts northwest, north, northeast, east and south of Orel. The latest advanses, the Russians said, placed them nine miles northeast of the German bastion and 10 miles south.

MUNDA—U. S. army and navy bombers cut new nicks in the Japanese defense of Munda air base on New Georgia island in the Solomons by dropping 27 tons of bombs on them Sunday.

There still was no definite word of peace from Italy. Apparently Marshal Pietro Badoglio had not deigned to reply to Allied ultimatums. But Madrid dispatches said there was a flurry of activity at the Vatican with the papal secretary of state calling upon Badoglio after a conference with the American charge d'affaires.

For many hours Saturday night and Sunday Allied radios sweated the Italians with General Eisenhower's warnings that delay in making peace could no longer be tolerated.

Then the fleets of big bombers roared over Naples. Today's communique from North African headquarters said the Naples docks and the nearby airport of Capodichino were blanketed with bombs.

From Turkey it was reported that thousands of pamphlets had been distributed in Sofia, Bulgarian capital, declaring "While there is still time, let us imitate Italy's example."

The cumulative effect of events appeared to have given Germany a real case of the jitters.

Swedish newspaper correspondents in Berlin wrote to Stockholm newspapers that the German press now admitted Mussolini's fall would effect the outcome of the war and Nazi leaders feared something similar might happen in Germany.

Hamburg was said to be virtually deserted by its 1,000,000 population and a city of blackened ruins after the week-long assault by day and night raiders.

American medium bombers returned to the assault of German airfields in France today, hitting Merville and St. Omer.

American bombers and fighters had shot down more than 500 Nazi fighters in July at a cost of 108 Flying Fortresses and an unlisted toll of fighters.

From Moscow, the Soviet radio reported a shake-up in the German U-boat bases of Norway where a Nazi crew tried to sink its boat rather than go to sea.

ists apparently weren't taking any chances.

The rush started at approximately 7 p. m. and continued until the station closed at 10 p. m. Cars were still lined up three blocks back when the station closed.

At 10:30 p. m. another station opened and the motorists flocked to that station, forcing the manager to close at midnight.

There was no such excitement in Mansfield. Local filling station operators reported they knew nothing of the reduction of gasoline allotments and they said there was no rush on their supplies.

commanded one group of Liberators, said the scene was the "closest thing to Dante's Inferno I ever saw."

Dipping to chimney-stack level, wave after wave of the four-engined bombers swept over the 19 square-mile oil fields shortly after 2 p. m. yesterday, dropping 300 tons of high explosive and fire bombs and strafing everything in sight.

Returning pilots told of huge gasoline storage tanks exploding in mushroms of flame and of buildings in the refinery area being blown to bits. The refineries provide 90 per cent of the German air force's gasoline supplies.

The raid was the fourth by the Allies on the Ploesti fields, the Russians having bombed them twice in 1941 and the 9th U. S. Air Force having followed through with a raid from Palestinian bases a little more than a year ago.

Staff Sgt. Jack Swafford, waist gunner on a plane known as "Little Joe," said he saw one oil tank "open up like a coffee pot," sending flames high in the air. Capt. Harold A. Wicklund, who took part in the raid on Rome, said he "enjoyed this one much more."

"I saw lots of smoke," he said. "We did some damage. It all happened so fast I don't know for sure what we hit."

Before the first train could clear the track, an eastbound train collided with the derailed locomotive and cars and its locomotive and 23 cars were shunted from the rails.

Women fainted as the craft struck the earth with a dull crash. Splinters and fragments were hurled several hundred feet from the wreckage.

The flight was staged by the Robertson Aaircraft Corp., and the First Troop Carrier command of the army air forces. Maj. Walter T. Fletcher, who piloted the Douglas C-47 cargo plane which towed the glider, said the craft was released from the tow line without incident.

The glider was built to accomodate 15 fully-equipped soldiers, or five men and one jeep, but company officials said it could handle five times its weight capacity. Shortly before the crash, the craft made a successful test flight.

At a press conference before the flight, Mayor Becker was asked whether he thought glider flights were dangerous. Becker replied: "You can die only once and we must die sometime."

County road 150 has been used as a detour since traffic on U. S. route 30 has been stopped because of the grade elimination project west of the city.

In another accident in the Mansfield vicinity, a Cleveland motorist suffered head lacerations when his automobile struck the back end of a truck on U. S. route 42, near Mansfield.

Steve Lengel, Cleveland, was treated at General hospital and released. Lengel told state patrolmen that he fell asleep while driving. The truck driver, Earl E. Moore, Cleveland, escaped injury. The front end of Lengel's automobile was badly damaged.

A four-year-old Mansfield girl, Shirley Howell, suffered head lacerations when a car driven by her father, James Howell, 326 Prescott street, struck a parked automobile, owned by Harold Elphic, 196 West Fourth street, at the corner of Harker and Davey streets. The child was treated by a Mansfield physician.

Howell told officers that he fell asleep while driving.

operations as equaling a major land battle in the strain imposed upon Nazi resources.

These experts believe the aerial attacks on Hamburg have been as destructive, if not more so, as a land assault would have been. They believe such assaults may well be compared with the seige such as the Germans imposed against Leningrad, denying the Nazis the use of Hamburg's war facilities while engaging huge land forces the size of which is indicated by estimates that Ruhr anti-aircraft personnel approximate 1,000,000 men.

It also has been pointed out that the week's heavy air bombardment cost the American air force 87 bombers and the Royal Air Force, 98. Those are large figures. There certainly have been times in the past when such losses would nearly have wiped out the current effectives of both air forces. But their commanders have made clear they are not spending the forces faster than the replacement rate.

From this it should not be automatically decided that the Allied replacement rate approximates 200 a week because it must be rememebered that for some weeks the weather washes out operations.

It should not be forgotten that the United States Air Force in this theater by no means has reached peak strength. What lies ahead can be suggested by the very high priority given the construction of additional U. S. airfields in Britain.

cooperation of the people of Harlem."

The mayor, Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine and Fire Commissioner Patrick Walsh set up headquarters at the West 123rd street police station and directed activities of police and firemen from that point.

Harlem hospitals were overflowing with injured men and women, the majority Negroes. Some were being treated in corridors and as the injured list increased, police began taking patients to hospitals in other sections of the city.

Three Negro civilians were killed by gunfire. Bottles and bricks rained down from rooftops as 6,000 police drawn from all parts of the city sought to quell the widespread disorders.

The disturbances were touched off when a white policeman shot and wounded a Negro soldier, who police said, attempted to interfere with the arrest of a Negro woman in a hotel lobby.

Approximately a dozen emergency trucks patrolled the area along with 5,000 patrolmen and 1,000 detectives—wearing white air raid helmets — when looting of stores was reported.

'RADIO PARLEY'

Mansfield-Shelby Foremen To 'Attend' Meeting By Ear.

Members of the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club, affiliated with the National Association of Foremen, had been asked today to participate in the association's convention-by-radio, scheduled for September.

Too busy with their war jobs to travel to a convention and willing to forego their annual trip to help reduce the travel jam, the foremen will listen to a radio convention that will last only an hour and then they will conduct meetings in the home communities to discuss industrial problems.

A number of Mansfield foremen in recent years have attended the National Association of Foremen conventions in various cities throughout the middle west.

The convention proceedings, featuring discussions by leaders in the industrial field, will be broadcast over a national network to foremen who will assemble at meting places in their home communities. The discussion sessions will follow.

EXPRESSES HOPE ITALY WILL BOW

Spellman, Back From Fronts, Says Surrender Would Bring Peace Nearer.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman said today he hoped Italy would accept peace offers made her, to "provide an opportunity and a challenge to the United Nations to show how they intend to keep faith with the world, with their words and with themselves."

Back from a six-months tour covering Africa, the Mediterranean and the British Isles, and including a visit to the Vatican, Archbishop Spellman read a statement to a general press conference, in which he said:

"Italy's surrender would bring nearer the peace for which the world yearns.

"It would spare the lives of American, British and Canadian soldiers, as well as Italian lives and Italian cities. It would spare the lives of many soldiers and civilians of all nations."

Archbishop Spellman, who said he made his 45,000-mile tour by air "at times as a private American citizen and as military vicar of the Catholics in the armed forces of the United States," said his mission was "the mission of America—to make America always stand for good."

He said his visit to Pope Pius XII "was for me the happiest and saddest experience of my journey." He was happy to receive the blessing of the holy father," the archbishop said, and to witness "his sanctity of life and his high purposes," but he added that he was saddened "in the vision of the weight of the cross he carries."

ALLIED MONEY USED IN SICILY

Military Currency Released For First Time on Island.

WASHINGTON —(INS)—The war and treasury departments today revealed that "Allied military currency" has been released in Sicily.

Allied expeditionary forces, the statement declared, seeking to establish orderly relationships with the people of liberated Sicily are introducing the currency into its occupied areas. The money is called "lira," a term that will be understood by every Sicilian.

This is the first Allied venture into the field of military monetary expedience, officials of the treasury and war departments said, and an undertaking without precedent so far as the United States is concerned.

The division expects to release more than 200 young animals from the state raccoon farm at Milan.

CITY'S BANK CLEARINGS UP

July's $9,375,718 Figure Is $160,000 Greater Than In June, Reports Show.

Mansfield bank clearings totaling $9,375,718 in July represented a gain of $160,000 over the June figures but they were still more than $1,000,000 below the July total last year.

Figures compiled by John Swank, secretary of the Clearing House association, showed the city's banks have cleared 62,198,198 during the first seven months of this year as compared with $72,128,969 for the corresponding period in 1942.

Clearings have been spotty this year, starting off slowly and reaching a peak of $9,512,595 in March. In April and May they dropped off sharply and then started to climb again in June.

Heavy buying of war bonds, particularly during bond campaigns, is believed responsible for the fluctuating figures and the decline from the 1942 figures.

Mansfield Volunteers to Help In New War Loan Campaign.

Mansfielders will be among the 5,000,000 volunteers who will canvass the United State in an effort to make the $15,000,000,000 September War Loan Drive a success.

The committee in Mansfield has not yet received a definite goal for Richland county, but the figure and further details on the drive are expected in the near future.

In a dispatch from Washington today it was stated that every worker will be asked personally to buy an extra bond during the campaign over and above what he is buying under the payroll deduction plan.

Half of the volunteers will interview the wage earners in offices, stores, and plants, while the other half will sell bonds at homes.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, AUGUST 2, 1943.

It is uncertain, as yet, whether Mussolini has "gone down in history" or just gone down.

Then again, the war MIGHT last six years — or even longer—if everybody behaved in the way strikers do.

Shortage suggestion: For chewing purposes, one stick of gum will last indefinitely—it's only the flavor that's eventually chewed away.

Less Traffic, More Fatalities

DEATH of three persons as a result of collision of two automobiles last Friday night on the Park avenue west road within a few miles of Mansfield, serves tragic warning that reduction in motor traffic is no safeguard against accidents and that constant vigilance is the price of safety.

This year's increase of traffic fatalities in Richland county, as compared with the 1942 record to this date, may indicate that less crowded highways tend to encourage speed and carelessness.

Aside from the patriotic duty of keeping speed within the 35-mile limit, to conserve tires and gasoline, and avoidance of non-essential driving, there is the added responsibility of driving carefully at all times, so as to avoid the danger of such disastrous occurrences as that of last Friday night.

Seek To Socialize Medical Care

SOME IDEA of the extent to which theorists can go in attempting to foist half-baked socialistic ideas on the public, in the guise of social progress, is gained from study of a bill introduced in the senate by Democratic Senators Robert F. Wagner, of New York, and James E. Murray, of Montana.

Starting out as a proposal to extend the scope of social security to groups not now included in that act, the Wagner-Murray bill goes on to set up a system of government-directed medical care, at an estimated cost of $3,000,000,000 a year.

Under the system, as outlined, a "Surgeon General of the Public Health," under political appointment, would be in charge, with power to hire doctors, establish fees, determine the number of individuals for whom any physician may provide service, and decide what hospitals or clinics would be used.

It has long been the established practice of communities —municipal, township and county—to provide for medical treatment of charity cases, and it has also been the consistently maintained attitude of many physicians and surgeons to base their charges on "ability to pay," but it may be doubted if there is even a fair-sized minority of Americans who would wish medical or surgical service to be placed under political management and made a part of a paternalistic government's "free" service.

Reduced to individual consideration, there is probably no needed service more subject to confidence, personal preference and right of selection than that of the physician or surgeon to be called in cases of illness or accident. The idea of having any politically appointed doctor who happened to be handy sent to a home in case of illness, or assigned to perform an operation, would be intolerable to a great majority of people.

Under what has been—and should continue to be—the American system, the practice of medicine and surgery has advanced amazingly during the past century and is just now in the midst of some marvelous new achievements.

The deadening effect of political control, which penalizes superiority and glorifies mediocrity, should not be permitted to invade a professional field in which superior ability and skill is preferred above partisan considerations.

Imagine, for instance, a doctor or surgeon being chosen by methods similar to those used in selecting a postmaster!

Contract Obligation of Teachers

TEACHERS in Mansfield public schools should have no difficulty in realizing the necessity for refusal by the board of education to approve resignations submitted between August 1 and the date for re-opening schools next month.

In order to carry on a school system successfully it is necessary to plan ahead in the matter of teaching staff, which is done by means of contracts assumed to be equally binding on the parties concerned.

There are instances, of course, when changing conditions justify withdrawal from a teaching position by a person under contract but such a right could scarcely be extended to the point of permitting contracts to be broken for no better reason than to take a temporary better-paying job.

This would seem to place teaching positions in the category of make-shift jobs, taken merely to fill in until "something better" showed up, rather than considering teaching as a high profession in which some financial sacrifices must be made in order to perform the fine service involved in this line of work.

Teachers who are willing to jeopardize the efficiency of a school system with which they have been associated, by abrupt withdrawal in disregard of contract obligations, might well subject themselves to a little introspection.

Red Tape Hampers Distribution

ONE effective weapon against inflation would be greater production of consumer goods. Taxes and bonds can never be made to absorb all of the war-inflated earnings of the people. Moreover, it is becoming evident that price ceilings are only a limited success. Therefore, to help maintain stability there must be sufficient production of necessities to furnish an outlet for consumers' dollars. If there is no such purchasing power outlet and wages continue to spiral upward, accompanied by astronomical government borrowing, the inevitable result will be more and more inflation.

Civilian production should not be curbed any more than is absolutely necessary to meet armament demands. The nonsense of artificial restrictions on production merely to make the people realize they are at war, must cease. Lengthening casualty lists carry their own tragic story.

In addition to stepping up production, the reams of red tape entangling retail distribution should be removed. Rationing and price regulations must be simplified. Attempts to stop inflation by bludgeoning retail prices back to lower levels, regardless of costs, should be abandoned before the distribution industry is demoralized.

Cut In War Production Expected To Relieve Machinery Shortage

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—A steady swing back toward peacetime production which has already embraced agricultural machinery and may even reach to automobiles for civilian use next year is in progress. This comes from officials of unquestioned information, though no public statement embracing the whole policy will be made for some time yet.

Decision has been made, for example, to permit the manufacture of 80 per cent of the 1941 production of agricultural machinery. As 1941 was the banner year for agricultural machinery manufacture in the history of the industry this is far from being chicken feed. Incidentally forty per cent of this eighty, or 32 per cent of the 1941 production, will not be rationed!

Although this has already been decided, it is not certain that the program will not be still more liberalized. Probability is it will go considerably higher than 80 per cent as the needs of the food situation become more and more pressing.

This is only part of the gradual transformation, according to these officials. For example it is learned that both American and Baldwin Locomotive have stopped all production of tanks and armament, and are making locomotives exclusively again.

Many of these locomotives will be sent abroad, for use in Africa, and in occupied countries, where the enemy is not leaving many of any value. But some of them will be allotted for railroad lines inside the U. S. where there is a tremendous need for more locomotives.

THE AGRICULTURAL machinery will be of great help for next year's food production, but some of it will even be in time, it is stated, for the late hay crop, for fall seeding, and harvesting.

By the end of this calender year, it is predicted by officials charged with production, the demand for all forms of steel except steel plates and certain alloys will taper off. Even army officers concede that this will happen early in 1944, the only difference being that the army, being more conservative, plays safe.

Two of the most important reasons for this situation, controlling the allotments of steel for agricultural machinery, the expected tapering off of demand for most forms of steel, etc., are: (1) the recovery of battle scrap beyond the wildest optimistic dreams from the battlefields in North Africa and Sicily.

It is pointed out that we are getting not only all of our own scrap but also that of the enemy when he is driven back; and (2) the near-elimination of losses from German submarines.

An interesting note in this connection is that captured German tanks are being sent to Turkey! The reason for this is that the Turks bought most of their military equipment from Germany, and are thus able to use parts of crippled tanks for replacements.

MOST of the iron and steel scrap from North Africa is going to England, which save the haul over and back.

Another factor is that our losses of equipment up to now have been unbelievably low.

Part of the credit for many of the curtailments in military production are due to Truman committee. Part of it is due elsewhere. But there has been a survey of future needs in view of existing stocks and of experience since the programs were started, the purpose being to prevent any such situation existing when the war ends as came with the armistice in 1918, when, as one senator put it, "we had two curry combs for every mule."

Explosives and guns of nearly all types have been produced to a point where the need for more of these types is in the far distant future. Stocks were built up in Hawaii and certain other spots where it was feared an enemy success might isolate them so that they could not be supplied. There was the natural desire to prevent a repetition of what happened at Corregidor.

But it is felt that this danger for Hawaii, and the other spots in question, has passed.

And When It Is Over.

There can be no doubt that congress will cooperate enthusiastically with the president's program for generous treatment of the men and women of the armed services when the war has ended.

They are the ones who are making the greatest sacrifices, and they are entitled to mustering-out pay, unemployment insurance, education and trade training, and other things the president promised.

And they are entitled to something more important—the opportunity to raise their families, earn their own rewards and secure their own future in an economy that is vigorous and productive and a society that encourages freedom of enterprise.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Russia Could Shorten War By An Offensive to Keep Nazis Occupied

WASHINGTON—It may not be generally realized, but with the sudden good turn of war news in Italy, Russia now holds the key almost more than ever to how soon the war can be won.

Real fact is that the numbers of US-British troops in Italy is almost chicken-feed compared with the vast armies Russia and Germany have facing each other. That still remains the vital area where either a quick or a long-drawn-out victory hangs in the balance.

While the Allies have possibly 250,000 men in Italy, the Russians have an army of 4,500,000 along the German front, and the Nazis in turn have 3,500,000.

If the Russians use this tremendous army to keep up their offensive, every single man Hitler has on the Russian front must be kept there, none can be diverted to bolster the Nazi front in Italy or the Balkans. In this case, the Allied second front might have quick and sudden success in penetrating southern Europe—as in 1918.

But the danger which worries some of the more cautious military minds is that the Russians will slow up. Obviously they have ample excuse for slowing up. They have been taking all the punishment for two years.

Their losses have been terrific—probably around 4,000,000. Stalin has been telling Churchill and Roosevelt for a long time that it was time the Allies took more of the war's brunt, that they didn't know yet what casualties were.

So now, Russia might conceivably decide to sit on the front lines, not taking the offensive, not retreating, but resting, watching the Allies fight. This would permit Hitler to divert troops to Italy and the Balkans.

Some of the skeptics in high Allied military places fear this may be the Russian tactics. Others, who bet on Russia at Stalingrad, figure they will keep on going. They also bet that if Russia does keep going the war will be shortened immeasurably, and that Hitler might cave in sooner than anyone expected.

FDR Sizes Up Dewey.

Governor Tom Dewey recently showed his ability to "take it" when a friend relayed a story told by President Roosevelt.

The president, of course, had not meant the story for the ears of his young New York friend and potential opponent. But nevertheless it was an important indication of how the president sized up the various Republican candidates.

Talking to Capitol Hill leaders, the president said:

"Now you take Willkie. He is a man with breadth of vision. His basic philosophy is sound. I would not worry too much about the country if he were in the White House."

"Then there is General MacArthur," the president continued. "He has been to Philadelphia, New York and Chicago." The president paused significantly. The connotation was that the general's knowledge of American affairs was very limited.

"As for Dewey . . ." continued Mr. Roosevelt. Here the president stopped, held out his hands, and slowly brought them from a distance of a yard apart to a matter of only a few inches apart, indicating a breadth of character of about three inches. "That," concluded the president, "is Dewey."

When the story was related to the young governor of New York, he laughed heartily, but made no comment.

Patriotic Italians.

DURING the closing days of congress, the domestic budget of the Office of War Information was so drastically cut that it was necessary to curtail radio broadcasts to foreign language groups inside the United States. Such broadcasts were considered important to counter-act propaganda cleverly radioed to the USA by Rome, which had some effect on Italian-born American citizens.

Knowing about this, Judge Eugene Allessandroni of Philadelphia, and other members of the Pennsylvania Lodge of the Sons of Italy, volunteered to pay what congress refused to pay—for these propaganda broadcasts to Italo-Americans.

Accordingly, patriotic Sons of Italy will finance a radio hook-up of 32 stations to broadcast OWI news inside the USA.

Royalty In Washington.

IT IS STILL possible to create a sensation in Washington—even in war time—over a question of protocol. Latest problem is whether or not to bow in the presence of Washington's royal residents, Crown Prince Otto and his brother Felix.

An obeisance to royalty created a minor sensation at the Brazilian Embassy, when Ambassador and Madame Martins staged a garden party.

Czech Ambassador Hurban was the first to notice it, and his eyes bulged. He whispered to a friend, "Did you see what Procope did before the Hapsburgs?"

"No, I missed it."

"He bowed—and very low." (Procope is the Minister of Finland.) "We don't do that sort of thing any more," said the Czech ambassador, "not even in Europe."

Those "Company Stores."

THE high cost of living which the coal miners have complained about recently was substantiated by an OPA survey of company stores in Western Pennsylvania.

John A. Fath, who made the survey, came back with a report of "exorbitant prices and mark-ups" and insisted that company stores, which do no advertising or sales promotion, should sell their goods at lower prices than other stores, rather than higher.

He found suits selling for $38.50 which cost the store $12.50. He found a shoe box marked $9.95, but inside the box he found the shoes themselves marked with crayon, "6.50."

Result of the survey already has been a voluntary price rollback in the company stores. Now that the government has taken over the mines, the OPA is moving to make this company store price roll-back not voluntary, but universal.

Note—Fath was once a storekeeper himself in Millville, N. J., home-town of Leon Henderson. He gave Henderson his first job. Many years later Henderson gave Fath a job in Washington.

Listen World!

Goodness Is Natural

QUEER—how the average person feels about Goodness. Most of us take it for granted that all human beings are born heels, and probably never get over it. Goodness we regard as an alien and artificial habit . . . a thin veneer, at best, over our original cussedness . . . something to be pounded into us, or acquired with painful effort.

Whereas, the exact opposite is true. Instead of being naturally bad, we are naturally good! Goodness isn't an acquired habit. . . it is the natural law of our growth . . . the normal plan of our development.

It is as natural for a boy to develop into a decent human being as it is for an acorn to develop into an oak. We were designed for goodness. It is badness which is the accident . . . the freak . . . the artificial habit.

Consider that acorn for a moment. Tiny thing—an acorn. Yet what a vast miracle it encloses! Within that diminutive bit of matter, there's the whole history of the oak. The growth of an oak doesn't "just happen." It is planned and implanted, to its last, minute detail, within that little corn.

The same thing is true of a human "seed." Human embryos contain the plan of man life just as the acorn contains the plan of plant life. Only the human embryo goes further than the seed. It contains a MIND PLAN as well as a BODY PLAN within its microscopic cells . . . a mind plan that is intended to develop, just as the body plan is intended to develop, in orderly precision, according to a fixed and perfect design.

Sometimes, of coutse, that development becomes retarded and distorted. Both men and oak may become stunted or crooked. But it was not meant to be so. Nature's great aim is survival. Everything in her design—whether it be a tree or a human being—is planned for survival.

SICK things cease. Well things last. So the natural plans of life are for perfection. And both normal babies and normal acorns are born perfect—equipped with all the essentials for perfect development. Life plans to be perfect or it could not go on . . . Life starts both the baby and the acorn in the direction of perfection . . . equipped with all the essential makings.

Scientists are finding some startling proofs of this lately. Taking new-born babies — who once were supposed to be chuckfull of inherited cussedness — and showing, by complicated tests, that they actually have no handicaps, save a slight trace of fear. And even that may be acquired. Not a streak of Grandpa's bad temper . . . nor a snitch of Aunt Elizabeth's laziness. A clean slate—ready for a perfect record. Which will certainly jolt a lot of Crepe Hangers who insist we're hellions from the jump.

What a lot of misery that old notion of our original worthlessness has caused . . . What a lot of viciousness it has alibied. Even yet, it's hard for most of us to realize that we were meant to be regular . . . THAT HEALTH AND HAPPINESS ARE OUR NATURAL RIGHT . . . THAT SICKNESS AND MISERY ARE THE UNNATURAL, ABNORMAL CONDITIONS.

Nor does this law stop with the body and mind. It goes even further—into that mysterious department of our life which we call the Soul. IF, FOR THE PURPOSES OF SURVIVAL, YOU WERE MEANT TO BE HEALTHY AND HAPPY . . . SO FOR THE SAME PURPOSES OF SURVIVAL, YOU WERE MEANT TO BE GOOD. GOODNESS IS NATURAL . . . BADNESS IS A VICIOUS ACCIDENT.

Makes you feel better to realize that, doesn't it? Here you've been thinking that the cards were stacked against you from the start. AND ALL THE TIME YOU WERE HOLDING A "FULL ROUSE."

Then stop "passing" when your turn comes around, stranger. BACK YOUR HAND TO THE LIMIT.

Words of the Wise

The opinions of men who think are always growing and changing, like living children.—Hamerton.

ERNIE PYLE

Roving Reporter

There's No Lack of Interest When Men Are Fighting to Keep Alive.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless, Delayed)—After being ashore all the first day of our Sicilian invasion, I went back to the ship and stayed aboard almost a week before coming ashore more or less permanently.

It was my hope to do a complete picture of the navy's part in such actions as this, and the navy's part didn't end the moment it got the assault troops ashore. In the days that followed our headquarters vessel patrolled back and forth between the American sectors, kept an eye on the shore in case help was needed, directed the fire of other ships, mothered new convoys by wireless, issued orders and advice throughout the area, and from time to time scurried in swift circles when planes appeared in the sky.

For despite the enemy's obvious air weakness, he did manage to sneak over a few planes several times a day. The day after D Day, general quarters was sounded on our ship 15 times. Nobody got any rest, day or night. The sailors worked like Trojans.

WHEN I try to picture our soldiers and sailors in camps back home now, I always visualize—and no doubt wrongly—a draftee who is going through his training like a man, but still reluctantly and without interest.

There isn't a breath of that left over here. Once you are in action that's all gone. It goes because now you are working. You are working to stay alive, and not because somebody tells you to work.

You should see our sailors when general quarters sounds. They don't get to their stations in the manner of school kids going in when the bell rings. They get there by charging over things and knocking things down. I have seen them arrive at gun stations with nothing but their drawers on. I've seen officers upset their dinner and be clear out of the wardroom by the time the second "beep!" of the alarm signal sounded.

Whenever we had general quarters I always just froze wherever I was for about five minutes, to keep from getting bowled over in the rush.

And the boys on the guns—you would hardly recognize them. Shooting at planes isn't a duty for them, it's an outlet. I doubt if they have ever watched a ball game or ogled a girl with the complete intentness with which they follow a distant plane in the sky. A gun has one blessing in addition to the one of protecting you: it occupies you.

Having no vital part to play in moments of extreme danger is one of the worst curses of being a correspondent. Busy people aren't often afraid.

Bombs fell in our vicinity for several days. The raiders went mostly for the beaches, where the barges were unloading. The number of narrow escapes we had must have been very discouraging to the Axis fliers. The Axis radio said our beaches were littered with the wrecked and burned-out hulks of our landing ships. Actually, in our 14-mile area they hit very few. But we had our tense moments.

The enemy fliers were brave, I'll have to say that. They would come right in through the thickest hail of fire I have ever seen thrown into the sky.

Dozens of our ships had escapes that were uncanny. Once two bombs hit the water just a good stone's throw from the stern of our vessel. And late one afternoon a lone Italian—I really believe he must have gone mad, for what he did was desperate and senseless—dove right down into the midst of a hundred ships.

He had no bombs, and was only strafing. He went over our tantail so low you could almost have caught him in a net. Everything in the vicinity cut loose on him at once. It was like throwing a bucketful of rice against a spot on the wall. He was simply smothered with steel.

Yet somehow he pulled out and up to about 1,000 feet, charged at our barrage balloons like an insane bee, and shot two of them down afire. And then at last the bullets we had put into him took effect. He burst all aflame and fell in wide circles until he hit the water. No parachute ever came out.

AIR RAIDS at night were far more nerve-wracking than the daylight ones. For you can't see the enemy, you only hear him. You do see the ghostly flares and the sickening bomb flashes, and hear the heavy thunder of it roll across the water.

With us it was always a game of hide and seek. Sometimes we would sit on the water as quiet as a mouse. No one would speak loudly. The engines were silent. You could hear the small waves lapping at our sides.

At other times we would start so suddenly the ship would almost jump out from under us. We would run at full speed and make terrifically sharp turns and churn up an alarmingly bright wake in the phosphorescent water. But we always escaped.

And then all of a sudden after the third day there was never an enemy plane again. They quit us cold. If they still fought, they fought elsewhere than our front.

CHAPTER XV

Meegan did not see Toby until dinner that evening when she said, "Clare and Fayne and Miss Willoughby left this morning..."

"Yes," he said, looking down at his plate and nodding. "I know. They'll be gone for a few days. You get around, don't you? How do you hear all these things?"

"The things that happen in that house are magnified. The news always gets around." When he looked up, she asked, "Where are you taking Erica tonight?"

He laughed. "My Lord, you know that, too?"

"Helen told me. Helen is her brother's wife. She thought I had something to do with it."

"But you didn't . . . I just remembered she was kind of cute. We'll probably go to Glasser's. There's no music here tonight."

"If there were, would you take her?"

"Sure. Why not? There's nothing the matter with her . . . except her right jab. I'll see if I can't tone that down a little."

"Tone what down?" their mother asked, coming from the kitchen with their dessert on a tarnished silver tray. "Oh, dear, I don't know what happened to the custard. I went directly by the instructions on the box and look at it . . . it's watery."

Toby arched a dark brow at her. "Who telephoned you in the mean time about a bridge game, darling?"

Meegan sat in Sue's living room that evening while Van and Sue went to call on friends. The children she supposed, were asleep. Even if they were not, they would not dare to make a sound after their mother's promise of stern reprisals if they gave Meegan any trouble. She had tried to read but the words made no impression and her thoughts gravitated from Toby and Erica to Sue and Van, lingering long upon the latter.

She looked around the room, soft in the lamplight and clean and vividly attractive. Sue was called a perfect wife. In nothing that she did could one find laxity and her patience with Van's neurotic father was commendable and indisputable. The things her deft hands touched were smooth and finished from the decoration of her homes to her clothes and the clothes her children wore. Her meals were inspired and served with dignity and grace. Why then with such a wife Van sought out Clare to drink and laugh with her at an off-hour in a hotel bar? Was it that Clare had a "humanism' that Sue lacked? Perhaps a woman could be so perfect a housekeeper and mother that she ceased to be a desirable wife. A wife has to be so many people at once.

She was guilty of what would have been to Sue an unpardonable sleeping at her post when she heard voices and sat up straight and smoothed down her hair. Van and Sue were coming in, the latter's clear eyes sweeping over the neat room with pleasure as though her home was the best of all possible places to be and as though, too, Meegan thought, she suspected some object might be out of place which must be put in place immediately.

"I hope we weren't too late," she said. "We didn't finish the last rubber because I felt it might take too long and keep you up."

"Why didn't you?" Meegan asked.

Van smiled. "You know Sue when she makes up her mind. I'll drive you home, Meegan."

"Please don't. It's no walk at all."

"Of course I'm driving you home. Blonds are not allowed running around loose on the island at this time of night. Demoralizing influence . . ."

Sue opened her purse. "What is it? Four hours. A dollar?" When Meegan nodded, Sue took out a bill and gave it to her. "Thank you so much, darling. I'm going up, Van. You have your key, haven't you, dear? I put it on your ring."

"Yes, I have my key, Sue."

He drove slowly to Meegan's house as if he wished to prolong the night.

"Beautiful night," he said.

"Yes, very."

"Romantic night. Or shouldn't I say that?"

"Why not?"

He chuckled. "I've often wondered if second honeymoons are as romantic as the first. Probably not. In the middle of a love scene you probably stop to ask each other if the children are covered or your wife reminds you to pay your life insurance tomorrow else it will lapse . . . Then your wife reminds you that you forgot to shave and then you give her hell for putting on that perfume you can't stand. Excuse me. I forgot you aren't married, Meegan. I forget that everybody isn't married."

She laughed quietly. "But I'd like to be, Van."

He turned his head and looked at her and smiled his twisted smile. "When you aren't married, it's perfectly okay to say that a night is romantic. When you are married and say it, you sound like a damned fool. You think it but you are supposed to keep it to yourself as if it were something to be ashamed of . . . It's funny, but in the scheme of things these days no space is allowed for a man to dream his silly little dreams. Substantial citizens shouldn't have such things. They should be all purpose and action and making money. If any of my friends here on the island found me walking in the moonlight with a silly, satisfied look on my face, they'd think I was nuts. This particular civilization doesn't give you either the privacy or the time to conjure up nice thoughts of the kind of world you'd like to live in. They are always talking about a better world but they never give you time to think just what a better world would be like. Well, here you are safe and sound."

"Thanks, Van." She turned to him. "I don't think you should care what your friends think if you want to walk in the moonlight and contemplate."

He laughed. "This is the kind of a dope I am . . . talking this stuff when I'm taking a beautiful girl home. A substantial citizen, didn't I tell you?"

Toby came in as Meegan was going up the steps. Surprised to see him at an hour early for him, she turned around and sat down on the steps, her face anxious and curious. So many times tonight she had tried to imagine the things he and Erica might be saying. Somehow none of them had rung quite true. Because no pattern had been set for Erica and Toby, no precedent.

He smiled mischievously as he lighted a cigaret.

"Looking for a black eye, by any chance? Take a good look. I haven't one. She's a funny kid, a kid with misplaced pride."

Meegan said, "She's the new rich and we're the new poor, Toby."

"She said she wouldn't see me again. Said the worst thing that could happen to her would be to fall in love with a guy on the island. She offered to accept my apology for an act you called bestial and to call off the date tonight. I thought it was a gag." He dropped on the step beside her and continued in an amused tone, "She told me about her brother's invention and she has it down to the last screw and bolt. She understands it. She's not dumb. She's read a lot and she dances like a dream. We did not call the date off, you see. We went to Glaser's. She reminds me of something that's been wound up too tightly. She has a funny little face that goes from cold to hot."

Meegan said, "She wouldn't be austere if you knew her a long time. She's very proud."

"She wanted to know why I wasn't in the service."

"You told her about your shoulder?"

"Oh, sure, sure. Then we talked about democracy . . . of all things. You should have heard her pounce on me when I said that democracy was an intangible thing. She said that democracy wasn't intangible, that you could see it and touch it in a hundred different ways every day in the free schools and open churches and labor unions. She's a new type of American, a new pioneer. She thinks and grasps every bit of knowledge that comes her way. It was the screwiest date I ever had. Oh, yet, I met Helen, too. She laughed at my jokes. I'm sure she's a very successful wife. Are you satisfied now? I know you'd be busting to know.

Meegan hugged her knees. "Not as bad as that. I was thinking of you."

"Where were you tonight?"

"At Sue's while she and Van went out."

He nodded. Then he said, "Erica said that her brother needed men at his plant. Do you think Mother would fold up if I put on overalls and got my hands dirty?"

"You mean a job in a defense plant?" She wanted to shout with joy. Toby going to work . . . He would not see Clare there. Toby in overalls with his hands dirty and the elegant Clare were completely incompatible . . . What had happened to a relationship that had burned out as a fever burns out quickly?

There was a bite in Toby's voice. "Since I can't take up arms, I might and could take up tools."

"When? Now? At once?"

"We can't break up Mother's summer. I could start after Labor day. I could sell Mother on the idea I'm doing my duty."

Meegan arose. Her face was thoughtful. "In the picture you are giving me I—I don't see Clare . . ."

"I don't either. She's . . . out." But there was a curious kindness in his voice. It had none of the harshness or bitterness attached to an abruptly ended love affair.

"I'm glad. You know how glad I am, Toby."

"We'd better go up. Mother will be waking up . . ."

"Of course."

But when she was in bed she felt as she had many times in school when she was faced with 'X' representing an unknown quantity . . .

WANTS 'USONANS'

RIVERSIDE, Cal.—(U.P.)—Before the Institute of World Affairs, Chancellor Rufus B. von Kleinsmid of the University of Southern California proposed the adoption of the term "Usonan" by citizens of the United States of North America as a possible solution of the lack of clarity caused by the fact that citizens of both North and South America call themselves "Americans." The final "n" is added for euphony and locale.

SERVICE READ IN BAY VILLAGE GARDEN

Rev. David Roller Reads Nuptials for Mrs. Katherine Maltbie Walker and Frank L. Hanson; Couple Will Make Home In Mansfield.

IN THE garden at the home of Mrs. M. D. Sarbey of Bay Village, the lovely ceremony which united Mrs. Katherine Maltbie Walker and Frank Lawrence Hanson in marriage was performed. The service was read Sunday afternoon at 5:30 by Rev. David N. Roller.

Mrs. Walker is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Maltbie of Cleveland. Mrs. Anna E. Hanson of Oak Park, Ill., is the mother of Mr. Hanson, who resides at 580 Russell road.

Music at the wedding was played by Margaret B. Hall, pianist. Soloist was Thurza D. Hazeltine. Mrs. Hazeltine sang "Love Never Faileth," by Frederick Root; "L'Amour Foujours, L'Amour," by Rudolph Friml. The instrumental selections were "O Perfect Love" and "Intermezzo" by Provost.

The bride, who was given in marriage by Mark P. Wolcott of this city, was attired in a sky blue chiffon afternoon dress, with a small matching blue felt hat and veil. Her shoulder corsage was of yellow roses.

Maid of honor was Mrs. Walker's daughter, Miss Louise Walker, a sophomore at Ohio State university. Miss Walker wore a gown of grey crepe with a small rose felt hat. American beauty roses comprised her corsage.

Best man for Mr. Hanson was his son, Frederick Lawrence Hanson of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Following the ceremony a small informal reception for twenty-one relatives and friends was given at the home of Mrs. Sarbey.

When the newly married couple left for a wedding trip to a Lake Erie summer resort, the new Mrs. Hanson was wearing a navy blue gabardine suit. They will be at home at 580 Russell road after Aug. 15.

Mrs. Hanson is a graduate of East high school at Cleveland and the Noyes School of Rhythm in New York. She is a pioneer member of the Cleveland Playhouse group. Before her marriage she was employed in the gift shop at the Charles Ritter company.

Mr. Hanson graduated as an electrical engineer from the University of Illinois. He is a member of Tau Bete Pi and Eta Kappa Nu fraternities. He is the vice president in charge of sales at the Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company.

THEY'RE NOT COEDS. They're members of Spitalny's all-girl orchestra. And that's not a campus —it's a terrace at Rockefeller Center. But those are real campus furs they're wearing, two of a budget group designed by Harry Jay Treu. Left, let-out silver-tipped raccoon, $245; right, natural skunk, $195.

AUSTRALIAN OPPOSSUM is the fur. Kathleen, of Spitalny's band, is the girl. Harry Jay Treau is the designer, and $325 is the price. This long-wearing, soft gray fur is let-out like mink. A thrifty coat for duration wear.

Lieut. Hammer Brings Bride To Mansfield

Couple Married In Columbus, Visit Here.

MANSFIELD friends of Lieut. John William Hammer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Hammer, Dickson parkway, are having the opportunity of meeting his bride, the former Margaret Gratza of Philadelphia, while they are here visiting for several days. The young couple and the elder Hammers returned to Mansfield this past week-end from Columbus Air Base, Columbus, Miss., where Lieut. Hammer has been in training.

The senior Hammers went to Mississippi several weeks ago to attend the wedding of their son and daughter-in-law and to witness his graduation from the Columbus Air School. The nuptials were solemnized at the post chapel on Friday, July 23, at 6 o'clock in the evening and on the 28th he was promoted from cadet to second lieutenant, receiving his wings at that time.

For the quiet ceremony the chapel organist played "I Love You Truly," "Intermezzo" and "Evening Star." The altar was decorated with bouquets of white gladioli.

For her wedding the bride chose a two-piece aqua suit and white accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. Attending her was Mrs. W. R. J. Van Brunt of Union Hill, N. J., who wore a navy blue ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias.

Lieut. William Chirm of East Orange, N. J., close friend and fraternity brother of Lieut. Hammer served as best man.

Following the nuptial vows a wedding supper was served the bridal party at the Gilmore hotel in Columbus.

The bride attended Denison university and before her marriage was employed at the Cleveland Cliff Iron company, Cleveland. Lieut. Hammer was graduated from Denison where he was affiliated with the Kappa Sigma fraternity. He was employed by the A. S. Gilman Printing company, Cleveland, before entering service.

Shower Fetes Marjorie Walker At Walter Home

The bride-elect of Pvt. George Gazdak, jr., Miss Marjorie Walker was honored in another of the series of pre-nuptial showers for her Friday evening at the home of Miss Vivian Walter, 269 Rowland avenue. Miss Naomi Velzy was associate hostess at the personal shower.

In the early part of the evening games were played by the guests. Prizes were won by Miss Walker and Miss Helen Sampsel. The remainder of the evening was spent making a bride's book for the honoree.

At a late hour luncheon was served buffet style from a long table centered with a large tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom on a large round mirror. Tall white tapers in silver candelabra were placed at either end of the table.

The hostesses presented the bride-elect with a personal gift.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

RIGHTS AND WRONGS

What is right and what is wrong, what is ethical and what is unethical, what is sportsmanlike and what is not—all of these are dealt with as "proprieties" of the game in the new Laws of Contract Bridge. Here are official guides which any player should know:

While it is improper to play out of turn, carelessly or otherwise, it is proper for a defender to play out of turn, if declarer has played from both hands.

While it is reprehensible to allow partner's hesitation, remark or manner to influence a call, lead or play, it is proper to draw inferences from an opponent's gratuitous hesitation, remark or manner, but such inferences are drawn at one's own risk.

It is proper to warn partner against infringing a law of the game; for example—against revoking, or against calling, leading or playing out of turn; except that it is illegal for dummy to warn declarer against leading from the wrong hand.

While it is proper to keep silent in regard to irregularities, subject to penalty, committed by one's side (including established revokes), all four players are equally responsible to see that each hand plays a card, and but one, to each trick, and should forthwith correct such an irregularity.

It is improper to employ an unusual convention in play without informing the opponents of its significance.

It is improper to use, in calling, a convention the significance of which has not been announced. The term "convention" covers a call designed to convey an abritrary or artificial meaning, or used by a player with the assurance that his partner will not accept it in its natural sense. Such a call is not subject to penalty (as an informative remark).

It is necessary that a convention so used should be fully understood by the other side, and players using convention calls should be ready to reply fully to a proper inquiry by an opponent as to their meaning and use. Should it be necessary to make such an inquiry during the auction, the partner of the player who has made the convention call should reply. The maker of the call may be requested to leave the table while the answer is given.

The committee of any association, tournament or club, or a group of persons playing Contract Bridge, may prohibit or restrict the use of conventions which are both generally unrecognized and sufficiently intricate to cause unreasonable delay.

Bystanders or members not playing should refrain from making gratuitous remarks. They should not call attention to any irregularity or mistake, or speak on any question of fact or law except when requested to give an opinion.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, August 3.

The lunar aspects dominant on this day give promise of many ways and means to advancement of personal power and popularity, with openings for increased finance, credit, and heightened objectives of scope and influence. All these should expand with generous proportions and values. Domestic, social and professional contacts should be friendly, possibly emphasizing hospitality. However, there may be a lot of surprise of a disintegrating nature, so be wary of strange or erratic persons or propositions.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which their general welfare, both financial and social, will improve. Superiors, the public and those in power may be amenable to prudent and gracious approach, with the personal factor having a large place in achieving cherished ambitions. Nevertheless, there may be one disruptive note with surprise or curious development to be suspicious of. This may also exist in family, social or affectional matters.

A child born on this day may be efficient, generous, kindly and quite capable of attaining its richest desires, through this, its good luck and the cooperation of friends in high places.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Then after the space of a few hours, you'll never remember anything again!" Milner returned, and although I did not care in the least what happened to Ruth Hayes as long as she kept out of Katharine's way, there was such deadly malevolence in the slow voice of the Lansfield manager that I felt the old, familiar sensation of ice slithering down my spine.

Ruth Hayes made no reply to his threat, and after a pause Milner spoke again.

"Do you remember everything I have said, and are you going to abide by it?" he asked. "I want to know, now, so I will know what to do."

"I know when I'm licked," the woman said heavily. "I'll obey orders, but I can tell you," and her voice lifted defiantly — "you're making a mistake! My plan's better!"

Milner's Instructions.

"Think whatever you please," Milner replied, "but," he added with emphasis, "you are neither to try any of your plans or even to talk about them. Now, let me tell you again—watch for that woman. If you detect any trace of her, call the whole thing off and stay in your room until I give you the word to leave. And thumbs down on the other stunt. Have you got all that down?"

"Yes," Ruth said, defeat in her voice.

"Then get busy! Good-bye."

The receiver clicked, and after an instant I heard the operator say softly: "She's hung up."

"Thank you," I said, hung up my own receiver, and went swiftly toward the bathroom where Dicky had been listening, meeting him half way as he came out to meet me.

"Well?" he queried.

"It's anything but 'well'" I told him. "Please listen carefully, and tell me what you make of it."

I rapidly repeated the conversation between Ruth Hayes and Milner, blessing my long-gone little mother's strenuous training of my memory from early childhood which enabled me to be sure that Dicky was getting every syllable.

He listened attentively, and when I had finished looked at me with distinct anxiety in his eyes.

"You realize what it means, don't you?" he asked.

"I'd rather you'd tell me," I said.

"It means, first, that she won't go back to sleep," he said slowly; "second, that she's going to begin snooping around, and naturally, she'll begin with the maid on the floor. She'll be asking you a lot of questions about who's on the floor, and so forth and so on. You'd better get out of here, much as I hate to have you go out there in the hall. She might smell a mouse or two if she saw you coming out of this room.

"Now remember," he finished, "there won't be the slightest chance of her spotting you if you keep your brain clear, and your eyes half shut as if they hurt you. And, of course, you can always say: 'I'm not permitted to tell you that, Ma'am. I'll call the housekeeper; she can answer you.'"

He swept me up into his arms and help me tightly as his lips pressed mine. Then he released me, and with his hand beneath my elbow, propelled me toward the door.

"Allah knows, I'd give an arm not to have you go out there," he said, "but there's no other way. Better go into that 'Exit' cubbyhole, and shuttle back and forth across the hall to one of the empty rooms on the other side, or one of those in which the guards are stationed. Anywhere but in this room. Here's your carpet sweeper and pail and the rest of the stuff."

Dreads Recognition.

I picked them up docilely enough but with an all-gone feeling in my stomach. It was not fear for my own safety which was behind my dread that Ruth Hayes might recognize me. It was terror lest her possible recognition of me might interfere with my father's plan for tracing her procedure with the money which Olina was bringing to her.

But I was too proud, and too considerate of Dicky, to let him guess how terrified I actually was. From somewhere I pumped up a fairly gay little laugh before I opened the door.

"I'm quite looking forward to the adventure!" I declared.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Not that I'd expect you to be mildly interested in my state of health, or in the symptoms, but—

Today I am a mess.

My ankles are covered with insect bites, my arms are scratched up like a frustrated Romeo, my trousers are stained with stuff that looks like printer's ink, but isn't.

It's blackberry juice.

Coach Paul Snyder and I found ourselves yesterday morning on the Guy Van Nostrand farm in Knox county, so we stopped to pass the time of day.

"Why don't you pick yourselves some berries," says Guy, and fortunately, and coincidentally, the car was filled with such things as kettles and buckets and pans and things, so we picked a berry. The biggest, juiciest berries I've ever seen in my meanderings around the countryside.

And the next time I say "It's the berries," you'll know I mean the walnut size, not peanut.

Guy Van Nostrand, jr., coach last year at Johnny Appleseed, and newly-appointed assistant coach at Mt. Vernon high school, already was out in the bramble patch when we arrived.

Still working at Mansfield Tire and living in Mansfield, young Guy is very happy about the return to his home town, and will be moving back that way soon.

As for my berry picking, I fear I am not the best in the world even though I did lug home a large kettleful.

It's tough enough reaching through the brambles for the elusive fruit, but the thing that makes me ireked more than somewhat is to have a handful of the things and then drop the whole works trying to keep one from rolling out.

And with the itchin' and the scratchin' the next day, I'm not so sure now that it's worth it.

And if you confuse this sport column today with the Farmer's Diary, I hope Pappy Byers does't mind.

Navy Restricts Sport Activity

New Order Bars Play With Professionals.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The navy department today placed new restrictions on participation of naval personnel in athletic contests.

With the exception of athletic teams of the United States Naval academy, teams representing naval activities are forbidden to play with professional teams unless the contests take place on the home reservation of the Navy Club.

Navy teams may play opponents only from within the same area as designated by the National Collegiate Athletic Association in its zoning of the nation.

No individual or team is permitted in any case under the new regulations to participate in any activity requiring absence of 48 hours or more, exclusive of air transportation, from Navy duties.

The navy directive bars the participation of navy teams in bowl or similar contests and denied individuals in the navy who have been or are prominent in sports from taking part in athletics away from their station except as members of a navy team.

Students enrolled in the College V-12 training program may not engage in extra curricular activities during their first year and after that they are restricted to intercollegiate athletics as representatives of the college to which they are assigned and not the navy.

The 48-hour limitation on absence applies to V-12 students as well as to other naval personnel.

American Legion Tournament Opens

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Top teams from 10 Ohio districts tangle here today in opening play for the American Legion's state junior baseball title.

First and second round contests were scheduled today at Ohio State university and the Columbus State hospital. The third and fourth rounds will be played on the same diamonds tomorrow morning and afternoon. The three teams still in the running will meet at Ohio State in the title round at 4 p. m. Wednesday.

The meet is conducted on a double elimination basis, teams being dropped from play only after two losses.

Fists Fly As Cards Beat Bums

Dodgers Lose Twice To League Leaders.

By JOHN CASHMAN
(INS Sports Writer)

THE DODGERS can do everything but improve their position in the National league race. They can stage revolts; swap players in inexplicable deals; row with constituted authority and bicker with the front office, but they cannot win the 1943 flag.

This was proved yesterday when the Bums tangled with the St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of a double-header. Fists flew, Catcher Walker Cooper was whacked while engaged in combat and both teams came dangerously close to making the chaos general as the Cards won that embattled game, 7 to 1, then went on to take a comparatively peaceful nightcap, 5 to 4.

The tempest occurred in the sixth inning. Tempers were hot after Umpire Al Barlick warned Pitcher Wes Webber in flipping them too close to Stan Musial's head. Walker Cooper bounced out to Billy Herman after this little flare-up, and made the unpardonable mistake of unnecessarily stepping on Augue Galan's foot at first base, making no apology for same. Mickey Owen then leaped upon the catcher and brought him to the ground, Cooper being belted in the puss, meanwhile, by an early Brooklyn arrival.

Indiscriminate punching then followed, and both teams brawled in the manner of a hockey riot. After the dust had settled and the two major participants were parted, both were dismissed from the premises with a curt demand for more gentlemanly demeanor in the future and probable fines in the offing.

Elsewhere, things were plodding along at a placid rate. Rip Sewell pitched the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7 to 1 victory over the Boston Braves after the Bostonians had taken the first contest, 6 to 3. Sewell limited the Braves to three hits in gaining his 17th victory, while Jim Tobin gained credit for the opening triumph in 10 innings.

The Cincinnati Reds executed seven double plays in taking both ends of a twin bill from the hapless New York Giants, 5 to 3 and 3 to 2. Clyde Shoun took over for Ed Heusser in the opener to save the latter's victory. In the nightcap, Bert Haas drove in the winning run in the 13th inning.

The Chicago Cubs suffered a setback in their march toward the pennant in another of yesterday's flurry of double defeats, as they dropped two to the Philadelphia Phillies, 4 to 1 and 5 to 3. Kewpie Barrett, an ex-Cub, set back his former clubmates in the opener, and Al Gerheasuer twirled the nightcap victory.

In the American league, the New York Yankees strengthened their grip on the lead with twin victories over the Detroit Tigers, 5 to 4 and 2 to 1. Nick Etten batted his mates into both triumphs with three homers, while Bill Dickey and Rudy York also obliged with circuit clouts.

The Boston Red Sox dropped the opener to the Cleveland Indians, 8 to 6, then ounced back to take the afterpiece, 4 to 1. Al Smith was given credit for the opening triumph, although he was chased from the mound in the seventh.

The Chicago White Sox swept both ends of a double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics, 5 to 1 and 15 to 9. Buck Ross held the A's to eight hits to win his 8th victory of the year in the first game. The second game was a free-scoring scorcher, with the A's knocking Johnny Humphries out of the box with six runs in the third inning, and the White Sox bouncing back to knock four pitchers out of the box with 17 hits.

The Washington Senators swept both ends of a double-header with the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 3 and (eek!) 20 to 6, to regain third place. No Washington club in history has ever made 20 runs in one game.

As a matter of fact, there have been a lot of Washington teams that didn't make that many runs in as many games.

Cellar Dwellers Defeat Indians

(By Associated Press)

Just to prove their first job was not a fluke, the Kansas City Blues, cellar team in the American Association, won their second straight doubleheader from Indianapolis yesterday in games which again featured outstanding pitching. The scores were 4-0 and 2-0.

The Milwaukee Brewers maintained a three-game lead over second-place Columbus when Ted Norbert's pair of home runs gave Joe Berry his 14th win, 10 to 3, in the nightcap after Louisville had wrung out a 2-1 verdict in the first contest.

St. Paul, in seventh-place, also came through with a twin killing, dropping Toledo 10 to 3 and 2 to 1.

Southpaw Ewald Pyle, making his first start in Minneapolis, held second-place Columbus to six blows as the Millers won 4 to 2 after dropping the first game, 8 to 6.

No games were scheduled today.

PROVIDENTS LOSE TO NORTH RIDGEVILLE

In a game scheduled at the last minute, Saturday night to be exact, Mansfield Provident Loan girls lost a softball tilt to North Ridgeville yesterday afternoon at North Lake park 11-2.

The two teams will meet again in the district tournament at Oberlin, starting Aug. 9. Ridgeville has added players from last year's Elyria and Cuyahoga Falls team and is making a bid for the state title. Alice Iceman pitched for the Providents yesterday, but most of the runs made by the visitors resulted from errors.

Haegg Winding Up Track Tour

Schedules Last Race at New York Aug. 11.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Gunder Haegg, who makes the next appearance of a cross-country tour at Cincinnati this Saturday, will run his final race in the United States on Aug. 11 at Triborough stadium, Daniel F. Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., announced today.

Bill Hulse of the N. Y. A. C. and Gil Dodds of Boston will run against Haegg Saturday and in his final performance. The Swede plans to leave for home Aug. 24.

Hulse finished five yards behind Haegg at Berea, O., Saturday as the world record-smasher turned in a 4:05.4 clocking for the mile, a tenth of a second off his best time for the distance in this country. Haegg hung up a new American mile record of 4:05.3 at Harvard July 24.

Haegg took the lead in the second quarter at Berea and kept it all the way. Hulse crossed the line a yard in front of Dodds. Les Eisenhart of Ohio State wound up fourth.

Hulse's time in the race was 4:06, the fastest time run by an American miler. Dodds was one-tenth of a second slower, a yard back of Hulse.

Eisenhart took the lead at the end of the first quarter in 59 seconds, but Haegg came pounding through to take the lead at the end of the second quarter in 2:02 and his time at the end of the third quarter was 3:03.

After the race Haegg said that he had a "headache before the race, during the race and I still have a slight headache now."

Hulse was delighted with his own performance and said that he knew that if he could "get close to Dodds I could beat him."

Dodds, the former Ashland star, was the least weakened of all by the fast run.

East Enders Beat Athletics

Eckles Pitches and Bats Merchants To Victory.

Biggest upset of the Commercial baseball league season saw East End Merchants defeating Athletic Supplies yesterday afternoon at Liberty Park 7-4, knocking the Athletics out of first place.

Dick Eckles, Madison high school athlete, limited the Athletics to seven hits, fanned seven, gave only two walks, and contributed his share to the Merchant attack with a home run with one mate aboard.

Merchants got 10 hits off Jack Elliott and Kenny Lockhart. Elliott fanned 10 and Lockhart four.

Merchants won the game in the sixth frame, coming from behind to score three runs and take a 5-3 lead. Athletics had scored two runs in the first half of the inning.

Yuncker Sports forfeited to American Legion in the other game.

Cox Explains Harris Ouster

PHILADELPHIA—(U.P.)—Philadelphia Phillies fans today examined the explanation of club president William D. Cox in the dismissal of Manager Stanley (Bucky) Harris.

Cox read his statement in a hotel room last night. It contained 2,000 words and he admitted having toiled over it most of the day.

In it the fiery club president said that Harris had told the club's board of directors that if they were not satisfied with his work to get another manager; that Harris had refused to iron out fielding difficulties with the statement that he was not "running a school for ball players," and that Harris called Phillies players "jerks."

Cox said Harris admitted not knowing why the Phillies started sliding down the cellar door after a good start, and that he did not know what to do about it. Finally, the president said, Harris told him he would not confer with him at the club office on the purchase or sale of players, or anything else, and if Cox wanted to see him, he could do so "on the bench before each game."

Ex-Middleweight King's Still Fighting

Fred as middle king in '38.

Today, gun captain on cruiser.

Former boss of the world's middleweights, Fred Apostoli, ofie-time San Francisco bellhop, now is fighting his most important bout—against the Axis. Fred, a gun captain aboard a U. S. light cruiser somewhere in the South Pacific, was king of the 160-pounders back in 1938. Fred began his career as an amateur, winning the National A. A. U. middleweight championship in 1934.

Net Champs Defend Titles

Women's Semi-Final Match Takes Spotlight.

Meredith Fisher yesterday won her second straight championship in the girls' division of the News-Journal city tennis tournament at Maple Lake courts, defeating Barbara Samuel 6-0, 6-1.

And Lowell Bourns and Watty Slabaugh defended their city doubles title against the challenge of Lee Klingman and Jim Rakestraw 6-1, 6-2.

But the big match of the day out at Maple Lake was the three-set battle in the semi-finals of the women's singles between Lois Weingartner and Ruth Isham.

Mrs. Isham took the first set 6-4, but Mrs Weingartner, a former champion of the division, came back to win the second at 8-6. With the third set at 5-5 Mrs. Isham was forced to default, being unable to continue.

Not only did every set go to deuce, but nearly every game went the same way, with one game in the second set going deuce 11 times.

A fair-sized crowd, which started gathering about 1 o'clock, stuck around until 5 p. m. to see the tourney play, and was given plenty of thrills in the Isham-Weingartner match.

The tournament, except for one semi-finals match in the women's division, has now reached championship play in every division.

* * *

Watty Slabaugh defeated Norman Wilcox yesterday 6-1 and 6-2, and will meet Bourns for the men's championship for the second straight year.

Wilcox and Tom Bloor will battle it out for the boys' championship

Meredith Fisher and Helen Myers meet this week in the women's division, and the winner will play Lois Weingartner next Sunday for the title. A Fisher-Weingartner match would be a family affair, between sisters.

Reformatory Beats All-Star Outfit

Ohio State Reformatory ball club put together a neat poker hand of four treys and an ace Saturday to defeat the Newark-Mansfield All-Stars 13-3.

O. S. R. got three runs in each of the first three innings, and coasted to victory. Jackson clouted a home run.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—You've heard a lot about post-war sports planning; here's some that really is going on . . . Willis Vance, a Cincinnati theater man, has been touring the big-time sports arenas and has drawn up complete plans for an arena to be built in Cincinnati after the war . . . It'll be located right in the center of things and Vance thinks he has eliminated the bad features of other places.

* * *

. . . Semi-pro baseball is feeling the war boom, too. The Kansas State tournament at Wichita paid out $11,000 in prizes, including $3,700 to the victorious Fort Riley team.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Romney Wheeler, Associated Press: "Jeff Dickson of Natchez, the old Paris sports promoter, is reported missing in action—and two bucks'll get you ten that when they find him he'll be booking fleeing Italians for a six-day foot-race against Gunder Haegg and Arne Andersson."

HEADACHE HAVEN

Scribes who wondered why athletic director of colleges that had dropped football wore most of the grins at last week's meeting found out when they heard tales like this from the "navy" schools . . . At one New England college the "skipper" ruled that the trainees couldn't take part in athletics until the end of the first period (the middle of October) and then only the top 25 per cent of the class in the scholastic ratings could compete . . . "Why," he added, "the boys looked so glum that the college president picked up a few, took them out to a park seven miles from town for a swim and then helped raid the ice box for a few bottles of beer . . . When he told the C.O. about it, the guy lookedup the regulations and said they'd gone beyond the five-mile limit—and, of course, beer was forbidden."

FUTILE QUESTION

Herb Simons' "Baseball Digest" reports that Casey Stengel recently received a letter from a young hurler who wrote: "I'm also a first class futility player" . . . How many guys in the big leagues can you think of who could qualify for that title?

MONDAY MATINEE

Those Georgia Marine gridders who raised Duke's hopes so much when they appeared on the campus have decided they won't play football this fall . . . Wonder if Uncle Sam's $50 per is below the union scale where they come from?

STOCK MARKET PRICES SEEK LOWER LEVELS

June Retail Sales Reported Highest This Year at $5,228,000,000.

NEW YORK—Stocks continued to seek lower levels in today's early market dealings, industrial leaders generally recording fractional declines on a moderate turnover.

Showing losses at the opening were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Standard Oil (N. J.), Boeing and American Waterworks. General Motors had a modest gain.

Among business items studied in boardrooms was the commerce department's report disclosing June retail sales were the highest for any month this year at $5,228,000,000. They were 16 per cent above sales in the corresponding month a year ago.

CHICAGO — (AP) — Grains held steady in a quiet trade at the opening today. There was nothing in the news over the week-end to create any strong price trends.

Wheat started ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, September 1.44⅜-¼, December 1.46, and rye was unchanged to ½ higher, September 1.01½.

field and listed in the books were the names and addresses of both men and women prominently known in the city."

Bates said the book carrying the names of men apparently was used by Mrs. Williams when a "dinner party" was staged at the house.

Mrs. Williams denied in court today that she operated a house of ill fame, but she admitted that her girl "roomers," as she described them, frequently had men visitors late at night and served them lunch and beer in the kitchen.

"If anything like this has been going on there, I didn't know about it," she said. "I granted the girl roomers home privileges," she added.

One young man who entered the house while police were there was held today by police because he didn't have his army registration card. No charge had been filed against him today.

Bates said he had received a number of complaints about the house in recent weeks and city detectives had been watching it for several nights. They reported seeing a number of men enter and leave the house, sometimes leaving with girls.

Participating in the raid with the police chief were Detectives Howard Schuck and Herbert Palmer and Identification Officer E. C. Fuller.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY — (By Wireless, Delayed)—After landing in Sicily we left the runway in a jeep. Stopping at headquarters tent, we introduced ourselves to the major in command, who said to me: "I always used to read you in the New York World-Telegram, although I didn't always agree with you." That familiar observation was the first remark to greet me in Sicily. It made me feel right at home.

The major invited us to bivouac in his camp overnight. We drove into a grove to organize ourselves. I put my cot under an almond tree, from which I hung a mosquito net, an essential in this malaria locality.

Clapper

Jack Thompson, Chicago Tribune correspondent, who hides his youthful face under a long beard that is well known all over Africa, and who had just jumped with our parachutists during the first landing in Sicily, set his cot up next to me. Richard McMillan of the United Press, a veteran of the Eighth army's desert campaign, and Tom Henry of the Washington Star spread their bedrolls on the ground. Artist George Biddle had a pneumatic mattress, the dude.

Some of us had lugged army cots around for days and now we are drawing dividends by getting a good night's sleep out of them. In half an hour we were set for the night. Henry stretched out to read a book. Biddle began sketching. Thompson, McMillan and I cracked almonds and found them good eating.

Two hours earlier we had been in Africa. Now we were on Italian soil, with our own airfield around us, covered with Allied aircraft, pilots sitting in their fighters ready to go up—although actually nobody had seen enemy airplanes over this part of the island for days.

We broke camp in an hour or so when we heard of an opportunity to ride on a weapons carrier to Gela, one of the main Allied invasion points. It was near here that some of the parachute troops made their landing a few hours before the invasion by sea began. Theirs will be one of the big stories of the conquest of Sicily, because they had hard work to do. I saw some of them two weeks after the landing. They were still slogging along wearing the clothes they landed in.

At Gela, officers found us quarters for the night in an Italian house which was being cleared out. We put our cots in an empty room and slept well until convoys of army trucks began grinding through the narrow streets under our windows at daybreak.

Before going to bed we visited another airfield, from which fighters and bombers were operating. They had just moved over from North Africa, where I saw them a few days ago. We are filling up the airfields in Sicily with several types of planes, from fighters to medium bombers. This brings large advantages in extending our range further into enemy country, because it eliminates the water jump from Africa. Though this jump is small compared to the range of heavy bombers, it means a great deal to lighter aircraft. The speed with which airpower can be transferred and moved up is being demonstrated all over Sicily.

At breakfast I met Lieut. Melvin A. Armstrong, a signal officer for the airport, who knows friends of mine in Kansas City including Lacy Haines of the Kansas City Star. Armstrong helped us move on.

The campaign in Sicily is going so rapidly that the chief problem is not enemy resistance but just moving the enormous masses of troops and supplies that are now on the island.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—In 1938, when Frank Knox was still free to speak his mind, he wrote a book called "We Planned It That Way," the title being a pat phrase which President Roosevelt had used in claiming for his first New Deal full credit for the monetary economic rally of the nation which had quickly been put down.

In this work, Knox discussed, among other matters, the New Deal's propaganda services, paid for out of the people's taxes, which had for their purpose the glorification of the personalities and policies of the administration and the abuse of business and those individuals in business who had the patriotic temerity to raise a political opposition.

Pegler

Knox, now secretary of the navy, perceived that this propaganda machine, since expanded into an international outfit, was similar to those of Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin and developed his argument at considerable length. There were New Deal propaganda agencies in all 48 states, he wrote, whose purpose was to spread the message of the New Deal and the president and to report to Washington any hostile or suspicious movement among the citizens.

If any prominent person criticized the administration, he said, that person would presently be called before a congressional committee for investigation, publicly castigated by some obedient office-holder or harassed by the internal revenue in some tax matter. Or, possibly, all three of these punishments would be visited on him. Even if the citizen's tax returns were in good order, the usual effect was to frighten him into future silence by the very belligerence of the treasury's investigators.

Knox said a full list of these agencies would require several pages and that a full revelation of their duties would require a separate book but he had found 70 of them listed under the first three letters of the alphabet.

He then observed that the dissemination of propaganda glorifying the party in power at the people's expense was the technique of the Communists, the Nazis and the Fascists, and charged that the New Deal's machine had been created in open contempt for laws forbidding such use of the people's money. He also cited the law, and said he personally believed the president of the nation should be the first citizen to obey the law.

President Roosevelt, Knox believed in 1938, had taken the country far along the path of Socialism leading straight to Communism, Nazism and Fascism and he was explicit on the point that he no longer believed, as he once had believed, that all this was the work of inconspicuous planners who were taking advantage of the president. He said Mr. Roosevelt himself, was responsible for the New Deal and that his objective was one-man government. Indeed, his very reason for writing his little book was that he, Knox, still believed in the traditional American democracy and had become convinced by his acts that the president did not believe in it.

As that was his reason for writing the book, so is it my reason for citing from this and other works of men who have shown beyond challenge their ferocious detestation of Fascism and its equivalent, Communism, in a running reply to the new and daily more bold and clamorous New Deal propaganda which would identify with the enemy and as American Fascists, all who have fought the New Deal's extension of its power, over the people and property. I have observed this insidious adoption, in the guise of social and economic reforms, of measures and methods which Mussolini borrowed from his former Communist comrades and called Fascism and which Hitler in turn, borrowed from the bum and called National Socialism. For tracing the parallel I have been hammered persistently by organizations and individuals professing to believe in democracy.

I believe, too, that Henry Wallace, the vice president, meant me when he spoke a week ago Sunday of "midget Hitlers who continually attack labor." He knows I have never attacked labor by as much as one word and he knows, too, that his administration has created the equivalent of Hitler's labor front and, like Hitler, has used the power of the government to suppress independent unions. Wallace is one of labor's deadliest enemies because he approaches labor in the guise of friend and labor trustingly believes him.

Wallace said powerful groups of money-loving American Fascists were trying to take advantage of President Roosevelt's preoccupation with the war to destroy his domestic achievements of the last 10 years.

My earnest contention, so help me God, is that Wallace and the Communists are taking advantage of the patriotic preoccupation of the whole American people to establish in this land the equivalent, their American adaptation, of the very vices that the nation is fighting to destroy abroad.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: Lou Walters, operator of the Broadway night club, "The Latin Quarter," and co-producer of the present "Ziegfeld Follies," has been biog'd in the national magazines as a showbusiness Midas. Here he gives his advice to the millions of boys and girls who want to crash the Street of Dreams.—D. K.)

Lou Walters Says—

NOW is as good a time as any to answer the requests for advice that I receive from stage-struck youngsters. The requisites as I see them, in order of their importance, are—personality, good looks, good luck, talent and connections. Take two or three of these elements and combine them with a good press agent and a go-getting theatrical agent, and your worries are over.

Good looks is a most important asset, because without even the slightest whit of ability, an attractive girl can earn $40 or $50 a week as a show-girl in a theater, or from $50 to $75 in a club. Most producers worry a lot less about how a girl dances than how well she looks, and even the severest dance director is apt to be kind to a tall, graceful damsel, even if she doesn't know her right foot from the left. From the chorus it is frequently but one step to Hollywood, where with little effort and talent but plenty of looks, many have been catapulted right into the big time and money.

As for the boys, any attractive one can easily start in a chorus of a musical show. If you are not particularly keen on dancing, well, then there are always plenty of bands in need of male vocalists. Many of the boys who have started their careers in this fashion have graduated to nightclubs, theaters, radios, stage and screen.

Witness what is happening in New York at this very moment with just such young men. The city has been deluged with former band vocalists and is being swept off its feet by these sad-faced, doleful songsters who are knocking down salaries as fantastic as the national debt. All you need to get into this category is a slight case of anemia, a husky whisper that the microphone will transform into a soul-stirring, heart-wrenching sound, the ability to stay on pitch or pretty close to it, and plenty of luck.

If you're one of those fortunate fellows with a knack for mimicry or telling jokes . . . Broadway needs you. Anyone who can tell a joke is defined as a master of ceremonies, and there is a dearth of them today along the Main Stem. It makes little difference what kind of jokes they are or how often you tell them, as long as you keep telling them. There are several categories of m.c.'s; the lugubrious, long-faced lads who recite the woes of their daily lives; the exuberant fellows who "punch" across their material; and the mimics who always finish their acts with an impression of either Mr. or Mrs. You Know Who.

The successful m.c. receives a fabulous salary, which in itself is an amazing factor because m.c.'s don't work for money, but because they have an inward urge which says 'go' the moment they come face to face with a mike. So, if you have an excellent memory, are happiest when you are making people laugh, even for free, have studied all the gestures of the president, and have no qualms about "lifting" any gags a fellow-comic may discover, you're just the man Broadway is looking for.

FOOD OUTLOOK GOOD, DECLARES FEDERAL BUREAU

Civilians Won't Go Hungry, But They Won't Get as Much Meat In '43.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — American civilians will continue to be the best fed in the world.

The first official announcement of the bureau of agricultural economics on the 1943 food outlook underscored that oft-repeated statement of food officials by revealing that total food production in 1943 will be four per cent higher than in 1942 when all previous records were smashed.

The record food outlook doesn't mean that civilians will have more food available for them, however. In fact, the apparent overall civilian consumption for 1943 will be 6 per cent under the 1941 record, but 4 per cent larger than the 1935-39 average.

The only "if" in the BAE production statement was that its estimate was contingent upon average weather for the rest of the year and continuation of the present trend in record livestock production—both of which are likely prospects.

Livestock production is the key to the present total food outlook, and BAE figures confirmed war food administration predictions of last week that the current meat shortage will end soon with a flood of beef, lamb and pork. It is meat production that will boost total food production above last year's figures.

Food crops, even though acreage will exceed 1942 by 3 per cent, will be 11 per cent above the average of 1935-39 but about 10 per cent below last year as a result of a decrease in yield per acre. But the decline will be offset by 10 per cent more food livestock which will boost 1943 figures 38 per cent above the 1935-39 average.

The agricultural bureau of economics reported that compared with 1942, civilians in 1943 would get more per capita of pork, eggs, chickens, fluid milk, fats and oils, fresh citrus fruits, canned juices, dried fruits, potatoes and dry edible beans. They will get less beef and veal, lamb and mutton, fish, most dairy products other than fluid milk, fresh and canned vegetables, sugar, rice, tea and cocoa.

CADETS KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Newly-Graduated Fliers Die as Civilian Ship Falls at Willoughby.

(By International News Service)

WILLOUGHBY — Investigation of the deaths of two newly-graduated naval air school fliers in the crash of a civilian plane was underway today at the Willoughby municipal airport.

The two victims were Eugene Wardzinski, 25, of North Royalton and Stanley Thomas of Bidwell, O. The plane plunged to the middle of the field from a heighth of 200 feet while approaching for a landing, witnesses said.

The plane was a 90 horsepower Luscombe with dual controls which was owned jointly by Wardzinski and Al Marn of Cleveland. Wardzinski intended selling the plane to Robert Kalish, Civil Air Patrol member.

Thomas was hurled clear of the wreckage of the plane but died en route to a Painesville hospital. Wardzinski, trapped in the plane, is believed to have been killed instantly by the crash.

Both were graduates of the naval air school at Glenview, Ill., and were on 10-day furloughs before reporting to Corpus Christi, Texas, to be commissioned as ensigns.

City Parks Superintendent Frank Burton wants to see it rain hard again soon, but not because he's thinking of his garden. He's ready to have North lake filled and there's not a large enough flow of water into the lake to make much showing, particularly when there's a leak at the overflow. Park employes were busy today trying to repair the leak, and now all they need is enough rain to bring the lake up to its former level so the fish that used to occupy it can go back home. The lake was drained about two weeks ago to permit the construction of a new retaining wall at the east end.

MATERNITY CARE PLAN REVIEWED

Markwith Calls For Details of Federal Proposals For Soldiers' Wives.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director, revealed today that Ohio has reopened negotiations with the U. S. children's bureau on establishment of a maternal care plan for wives of Ohio servicemen.

The Washington bureau has been asked to furnish details of its new procedure under legislation which extended the maternal care plan beyond July 1, Dr. Markwith revealed.

He pointed out that new appropriation of money to continue the program resulted in a change in what physicians may participate in the program after a ruling from the U. S. attorney general's office.

The ruling stated that the children's bureau had no right to fix standards for physicians who wished to participate in the federal plan. The opinion held that any physician licensed to practice obstetrics in any state could participate in the plan regardless of requirements prescribed by the program.

The temporary emergency plan adopted by the children's bureau last spring defined what physicians could and could not participate.

"It is entirely possible," Dr. Markwith said, "that the new law changed other procedures which may remove some of the objections raised by Ohio doctors."

CONGRESS MAPS CLOSE STUDY OF TAX INCREASES

Will Check Army and Navy on Expenditures; Senator Calls For Economy.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's renewed request for "stiff" increases in taxes—made in a review of the revised $105,869,000 budget for this fiscal year—appeared likely today to be continued in congress with bi-partisan demands for closer scrutiny of government spending.

Senator Wherry (R.-Neb.) told an interviewer he believed the huge financial problem ought to involve reduced government outlays as well as enactment of new taxes.

"Some of the unnecessary appropriations must be curtailed if we are going to keep America financially sound," Wherry declared.

Similarly, Senator Radcliffe (D.-Md.) said he thought congress was preparing to look much more closely into future army and navy requests and Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) predicted congress would have trouble in finding additional revenue sources for the "truly stiff" program of additional taxes, savings, or "both" that Mr. Roosevelt said ought to be enacted.

Taft said it seemed impossible on the basis of figures compiled by the joint congressional committee on internal revenue, to obtain more than about $3,000,000,000 in direct new taxes. The administration has been searching around for $12,000,000,000 additional.

In his first budget summation in five years, the president disclosed Saturday that while the over-all war spending outlook remains unchanged, the army now is expected to use $6,000,000,000 less than the $62,000,000,000 estimated for it last January, while the navy's share will be upped $4,000,000,000 to $28,000,000,000. Congressional circles viewed this as perhaps indicating greater offensive power being sought for the Pacific theater dominated by the navy.
